

Ann Ziebell's Sunken Treasure Trove of Gilt-y Jewelry Pleasures

By: Amy Flurry

Atlanta jewelry designer Ann Ziebell, whose bracelets and necklaces are fashioned from paste set shoe buckles from the early 1900s, has made a sure-footed debut with her eponymous jewelry line's sunken-treasure appeal. The one-of-a-kind pieces are decidedly decadent, with their Victorian-inspired medallions and chunky, oxidized chains. Our summer uniform: Pile on the gilded pieces over a simple tank and jeans. You?
